Leech, the Secretary of the Centre, at the drug store of Dr. Purcell and at the GAZETTE office. Prof. Thorpe's lectures are very interesting, and his lectures on "Epochs of American History" were much enjoyed by the people whose privilege it was to hear them. It is safe to say that the second course will prove equally satisfactory to all who attend.

—The Philadelphia Record has a reputation of not being correct in its statements as to the truth or falsity of them. In its recent account of the burning of Mr. Robert B. King's barn and the subsequent suicide of Mrs. King, the facts were greatly distorted. The endeavor to connect Mrs. King with the firing of the barn was an outrage. The Record's statement that Mrs. King left the room when one of the insurance adjusters spoke of putting a detective on the track with a view of discovering the incendiary was not true. Mr. Pierson Mitchell, whose word no one will question was one of the adjusters. He says that they were only in the house about ten minutes, that Mrs. King was not present while they were there, that there was no mention of employing a detective and that even the idea of employing one did not enter his head. Mr. Pierson's statements effectually disproves the Record's Bristol correspondent's statement. That individual may think it a smart thing to add to a sensation by maligning the dead and increasing the distress of a greatly afflicted family, but no one of sound mind will agree with him. It is just as probable, as far as is known now, that the Record man fired the barn as that it was the deed of Mrs. King. There is not the slightest evidence that either of them did it.

—Commodore H. M. Heiskell, retired Pay Director in the navy, who died at his home in Germantown on the 26th inst., was buried in St. James church yard last Tuesday. We are informed that he was formerly a resident of Bristol. His death, says the Philadelphia Press, deserves more than a passing notice. He was the last surviving officer of the drum-headed court martial on board the United States brig of war Somers at the time of the mutiny when Midshipman Spencer—son of the then Secretary of War—was hung at the main yard-arm, with Boatswain's Mate Cromwell and Seaman Small at the fore yard-arm. This was on December 1, 1842, while the vessel was cruising in the West Indies. It was commanded by Alexander S. D. Mackenzie and Heiskell was purser. All the officers have now passed away but it is possible there may be some survivors of the crew, which consisted of about 220 men. The Somers mutiny was the thrilling event of that period of the old navy, and deeply stirred all naval and maritime circles, and Commander Mackenzie and his officers received their unanimous approval for the prompt course adopted. There has never been even an attempt at mutiny on board a man-of-war since the affair of the Somers. Purser Heiskell's vigilance mainly led to the discovery of the plot to murder the officers and capture the ship, and his part in the affair met with the highest commendation from the Navy Department and the Court of Inquiry. The Somers mutiny seems like ancient history to the present generation, but there are some people still alive who can vividly recall the events of the tragedy.

—George Wheaton Allen, who died a charity patient at the poor-house in Ohio, was a genuine public benefactor. He was the author of the homestead law under which thousands of his fellow-citizens have been able to secure homes without cost, and it is said that he spent $60,000 in traveling through the country and creating sentiment among the people and in State Legislatures, as well as finally in the National Congress, in favor of his wholesome measures. Like many other philanthropists his personal misfortunes seem to have grown out of a want of business capacity.

—The County Commissioners have appointed Michael G. Haney, of Tinticum, Mercantile Appraiser.
—The Distants at Tacony distributed 1500 turkeys among their employees for Christmas.
—The deaths in Philadelphia for the week ending at noon on Saturday were 718, being an increase of 93 over the previous week, and an increase of 350 over the corresponding period of last year.
—Ex-County Treasurer, Jacob Bachman, died at his residence in New Britain township, on Wednesday evening, in his 70th year. He leaves a widow and four children, three of whom reside in Philadelphia.
—Mr. George W. Childs has given his collection of rare prints, manuscripts, autographs, and literary relics, valued at $100,000, to the library of the Drexel Institute. This is probably the finest private collection in existence, and represents the work of a lifetime.
—An exchange remarks that if you are determined to keep a dog, you should feed him such food as will satisfy the whole system. It adds that it has little doubt that some dogs are led to kill sheep because their system craves a kind of nourishment that it does not get. But dogs that require the nourishment of warm blood are not desirable animals to keep in a sheep-raising locality.

—Tennyson's dislike, not to say hatred, of the common people grows on him with his years. His beautiful home at Haslemere is so arranged as to exclude the "profane herd" from a sight of the venerable poet, and it is a rare thing for any outsider to catch a glimpse of him as he strolls about the garden with his long pipe and slouch hat.
—John M. Thurston, now a prominent Nebraska lawyer, saw a great deal of poverty when he was first practicing in Omaha. His wife tells with great relish how he used to buy crackers and cheese and live upon them exclusively, and further adds that he could scarcely scrape together money with which to buy their marriage license.
—A Northampton jury, at Easton, Monday, rendered a novel verdict. After finding the defendant not guilty of the charge, the costs were divided in four equal parts. The prosecutrix was directed to pay one-fourth, the defendant one-fourth, the constable who made the arrest one-fourth, and the justice of the peace who made the return one-fourth. "Verdicts of this kind," says the Allentown Item, "may have a salutary effect on those who are fond of going to law, and on justices who send cases of a trivial nature to court."

An "American" Congress.
The Fifty-second Congress consists of 420 members. Of the 88 Senators 40 are Republicans and 48 Democrats. Of the 532 Representatives, 226 are Democrats, 87 Republicans and 9 Farmers' Alliance.
The foreign element in this entire body is quite inconsiderable, and is relatively less than in probably any other national legislature in the world. Greece furnishes one member, Norway two, Sweden one, Canada four, England four, Ireland nine, Germany three, New Brunswick three and Scotland one.
It thus transpires that out of a Congress of 420 members only 28 are of foreign birth or parentage. This may certainly be regarded as a very highly "Americanized" body, and the most timid may rest assured that the country is safe and in no danger of being captured by foreign influence.

—When the appointments of standing committees made by Speaker Crisp were read to the House, it was found that the name of Edwin Halliwell, the member from this district, was not upon a single committee. He was the only member of Congress who was utterly ignored. When the matter was called to the Speaker's attention he placed him at the tail end of the Committee on Education, one of the minor committees of the House.
The Bucks-Montgomery district is an important one. It has a population of about 200,000 souls, and in its confines are many important and varied industries and pursuits. It is practically unrepresented in Congress. Its member to the House appears to be so obscure that his existence was forgotten. Mr. Halliwell may be a good man but he will never be a great one. This is not Mr. Halliwell's fault, but his misfortune. He may know enough to vote right, according to his party predilections, or even if he does not, some one in whom he can repose confidence can tell him, but he will never have the influence that he should possess.

—The exports of breadstuffs for the current year show a large increase, due largely to the policy of Reciprocity inaugurated by the Republican administration. The surplus of agricultural products will find a profitable market abroad under it.
—The new Free-Trade scheme is to bring up a number of measures bearing upon the Tariff, putting wool, coal, iron ore and other raw materials on the free list. The same plan has been tried before and it has invariably proved a failure. There is less hope than ever of breaking down the Protective policy, the Senate and President both being Republican.
—The original of certificates of cures effected by the use of Ayer's Sassaaparilla are kept on file at the office of the J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Probably no similar establishment in the world can exhibit such a mass of valuable and convincing testimony.

You will never regret sending three 2-cent stamps to pay postage, to J. C. Ayer & Co., Boston, Mass., for a copy of Dr. Kneff's great Medical Work, 100 pages, colored illustrations; of great value to every family.
A TALE OF TWO CITIES.
Society in Philadelphia, says a Boston journal, is very elegant; that word presents itself to the mind always. The women are beautiful and well dressed, but there is a different ideal of splendor from that of New York. Worth may dress both women, but the least observant eye will know which is the Philadelphia and which the New Yorker. Homes have been perpetuated in the same family, and if they have removed the ugly wooden shutters, they have not changed that broad and hospitable doorstep and the deep comfort of the ample "chick building." In this oldest and most aristocratic of our cities some of the very noblest characteristics of a republic can be traced, writes Mrs. Sherwood in "Japannotes." There is no ostentatious ostentation or love of show. Very rich people do not live in houses so preposterously better than their neighbors. As it was said of two of Philadelphia's best citizens, Mr. Drexel and Mr. Childs, "two one could guess how rich they are, excepting by what they give away." And yet there is no lack of a certain subdued splendor in the luxury of a Philadelphia. It is like that rich velvet of the Castilian jewelry, burnished and then deadened, that it may not overpower the gem whose glory it enhances. In such a town as this, filled to the brim with science, education, thoughtful and great men, physicians of eminence, lawyers of renown, noble and philanthropic women, conversation flourishes. The talk at a Philadelphia dinner is of the finest quality, made nuclear by a queen little Southern accent, which from the lips of a pretty woman is the most musical thing in the world. It might almost be said to be the fashion to be poor or at least in moderate circumstances, in Philadelphia—a fact which commands itself to many delightful people who are overruled, distanced, driven out by New York, because neither their tastes nor their fortunes lead them to the competition which is now about the only excitement between the leaders of fashion in a city where wealth alone is the standard.

Honors of Swindlers.
We have exposed, during the last year, many swindlers with advertising under the name of medicine, vile compounds which only increase human suffering. To all who need a pure medicine and blood purifier, we recommend Sulphur Butters. —Editor Sun.
—To distinguish genuine butter from oleomargarine the following test is recommended: Draw a knife through a piece of the questioned butter and separate the parts thus divided. If it ever saw the inside of a churn there will be watery exudations in the track of the knife; but if it is a combination of prepared and disguised fat there will be a smooth, greasy surface only. This test is largely used by butter merchants.
